

ISLE Online Forum 2025

Teaching with impact:
Linguistics in the classroom

Wednesday, November 12, 2025
6 PM CET (Berlin)

Details:

<https://www.isle-linguistics.org/activities/outreach>

Elen Le Foll
University of Cologne

Julia Schlüter
University of Bamberg

Katharina Deckert
University of Bamberg

Join the 2025 ISLE Teaching Innovation Prize winner Julia Schlüter as she presents KorPLUS, an open, interactive learning package that empowers non-native English language professionals through corpus and AI literacy. She will be joined by Katharina Deckert, core collaborator on the project. Elen Le Foll will also showcase her open textbook Data Analysis for the Language Sciences, which received an Honourable Mention. Her accessible, inclusive guide introduces statistics and data visualisation in R for students and researchers in the language sciences. Both OERs are available as stand-alones and can be integrated in blended learning settings.

This ISLE Online Forum will explore questions such as:

- How can open resources make corpus linguistics more accessible?
- What role does data literacy play in empowering language professionals?
- How can digital tools support inclusive and innovative teaching in English linguistics?

Watch recordings of previous events via ISLE's YouTube channel (www.youtube.com/@isle2008)