

ISLE Online Forum 2025

Studying Telecinematic Language

Wednesday, February 19, 2025

4 pm CET

Details:

<https://www.isle-linguistics.org/activities/outreach>

Robin Queen

University of Michigan, USA

Christian R.
Hoffmann

University of Augsburg, Germany

Monika
Bednarek

University of Sydney, Australia

Valentin Werner

University of
Bamberg, Germany
(Moderator)

In this forum, researchers will discuss telecinematic language (TL). TL reflects societal norms, cultural narratives, and linguistic evolution, offering rich data for linguistic analysis from various perspectives. The panel will discuss questions like:

- Why is the linguistic study of TL a serious scholarly endeavor?
- How have subdisciplines like sociolinguistics, stylistics, and pragmatics benefited from analyzing TL, and what key insights have emerged?
- What roles do multimodality (e.g., visual vs. verbal storytelling) and multilingualism (e.g., English as the pop culture lingua franca) play?
- What are promising future directions for meaningful research on TL?

Watch recordings of previous events via ISLE's YouTube channel (www.youtube.com/@isle2008)